WELCOME TO WORSHIP

Questions?

During our time of worship has something stirred in your heart and you are not sure what to do with it? Maybe you feel a leading to get involved in some activity? Or you are not sure exactly who we are or what we do but would like to find out more. We are happy to chat, answer questions and listen. Make a phone call, send us an email or speak to us at the door after the service and let's set up a time to get together and talk.

- ♦ The kitchen renovation has commenced, please be mindful that the first area of the multi-purpose hall has our temporary kitchen and so parents please keep an eye on your children downstairs.
- ♦ There will be very limited parking Monday to Friday downstairs, please phone the Office if you are wanting a park the day before, the number of tradespeople coming in have priority.

Transforming
PRAYER

Thank you for praying for others. It is very much appreciated, valued and making a difference. Why not send a note, text or make a quick phone call the next time you pray to let them know you are praying?

Australia's farmers are battling the worst drought in over 100 years, and The Salvation Army is striving to assist them through these extra tough times.

Our Rural Chaplains and personnel are currently in drought-affected areas conducting regular visits to farmers and rural communities, helping them in any way they can by distributing food hampers, helping with bill payments and other financial expenses, assisting with farm and household jobs, and providing emotional and practical support.

Majors Rusty and Dianne Lawson (Rural Chaplains, Dubbo) are currently traveling around northwest New South Wales providing the necessary support for many farmers who have lost hope. Rusty says it is hard to comprehend the horrific circumstances many farmers are dealing with right now.

"It's only when you see the tears that you get real a sense of how broken and hopeless the situation has become," Rusty says.

"We are seeing farmers going without their medication to pay for the needs of their livestock. Many are starting to seriously wonder what the future holds for them."

In a letter to The Salvation Army, one farmer said: "I did not like having to ask for assistance, farmers seem to be so proud and want to do it alone. But for the first time in 25 years of farming, I felt like it was time to reach out and allow someone else to help us out. It took a lot for me emotionally to ask for help, but I finally figured I was a farmer, so maybe it is okay to ask. The overwhelming thoughtfulness has been a God-send during this tough time."

Dianne says, "Our famers have been crying out for a long time but now they are finally seeing some momentum and it is lifting their spirits. But we need more resources to give them the practical support they need to get them back on their feet," Dianne says.

The Salvation Army currently has more than a dozen rural chaplains across the country, and each of them is providing essential services for farmers in need but there is so much more that needs to be done. Anyone wishing to support our work with farmers and communities affected by the drought can visit salvos.org.au/rural support or call 13 SALVOS (13 72 58).
