Teaching

Giving my money to the Self Denial Appeal helps The Salvation Army run schools for both adults and children, to learn to read and write and have other helpful skills.

Colour-in Logan

The Salvation Army has many schools all over the world. The school in Nepal teaches women how to sew clothing and learn English.

How many times can you find the name NEPAL in the puzzle? Look up, down forward and backward.

Helping

The money which I give to the Self Denial Appeal helps The Salvation Army be able to assist people after they have lost everything in a natural disaster like a flood or an earthquake.

After the floods in the Philippines The Salvation Army helped people find new homes and jobs. Two years later they are still working with some of the affected families.

Building

Giving my money to the Self Denial Appeal helps The Salvation Army buy land and build homes for people in other countries.

The Salvation Army gave families in the Democratic Republic of Congo, Africa, their own land and then helped them build a brand new house on the land for the family to live in.

Housing

Giving
my money to the Self Denial Appeal helps The Salvation Army open homes for children to live in. Some kids have no parents to look after them.
Some kids' families are so poor
The Salvation Army cares
for the children
during the week.

In Suriname, South America,
children are cared for in homes run by The Salvation Army. They are sent there by their parents so they have healthy meals and a better quality of life.
