

FOOD SAFETY SUPERVISOR COURSE

You don't have to drive to a class
You don't have to take time off

New food laws introduced by the NSW Food Authority require certain food businesses in the NSW hospitality and retail food service sector to have at least one trained Food Safety Supervisor (FSS).

How do you become qualified

To become a Food Safety Supervisor, you need to successfully complete 2 units :

(SITXFSA101 Follow workplace hygiene procedures, and SITXFSA001A Implement food safety procedures from the hospitality training package.

Once you have done this, you will be awarded a Statement of Attainment from Booth College.

Booth College is an approved Registered Training Organisation to deliver this course and issue FSS Certificates to participants upon successful completion.

This course has been designed to be delivered online or by distance therefore no class attendance is required. Commencement of the training will be negotiated with you by our trainer.

Participants are allowed up to 8 weeks to complete their study

PLEASE NOTE: Full payment is required before participants are able to commence their study. Cancellations advised prior to the commencement of the program are eligible for a full refund

Course Details

Only $180
(including $30
NSW FSS certificate)

For more information , please contact the office

On 02 49698066 or e-mail

oasishunteradmin@aue.salvationarmy.org

To enrol go to our website:

<http://salvos.org.au/oasishunter/courses/hospitality/online-food-safety-supervisor-course/>

THE SALVATION ARMY
BOOTH
COLLEGE

(0328)